Dear Joan,

It seemed that I was a long way from you when I was on the East Coast, but now I really am. All I can tell you is that I am some where in England. I am well and happy and quite safe from any harm. The country here looks pretty nice, and the weather is swell so far. The trip across the ocean was quite an experience, really a lot of water, sure was glad to set foot on dry ground again.

Hope school is treating you good and you will have enough time to write me a lot of letters as I need them now more that ever.

I also wish you a Happy Birthday, wish I could send you something but is quite impossible and...(smudged). so will send all my love.

Write soon, Jerry
